

We Build, Operate, and Manage Point-of-Use Parts Centers for Transit Operations

Cura Group

Cura Group is a leading supply chain firm with expertise in operating and managing regional point-of-use parts centers.

With roots in last-mile logistics, we run fully-staffed point-of-use facilities that bring your critical inventory closer to where the need is.

Why work with Cura?

We focus on providing support solutions for transportation companies and suppliers of transit parts to hold inventory where they need it most — near their busiest routes and service hubs.

- Keep vehicles in service with quick access to critical parts and tools you need often
- 24/7 availability for maintenance and operations teams
- Scale operations up or down quickly to manage dynamic transit networks
- Turnkey execution from site selection to daily operations
- We offer big-company solutions priced for any budget

Always have the right parts in the right place at the right time. Storing frequently used parts in easily accessible locations near transportation service hubs can help transit operators maintain the reliability and on-time performance of bus and van fleets.

Reduce Costs

Cut warehouse overhead and labor expenses. We manage all the details of staffing and running a local point-of-use parts center.

Improve Efficiency

Save time and avoid shipping charges with on-site, round-the-clock fulfillment for routine or emergency maintenance and repairs.

Facilitate Predictive Maintenance

Keep parts you know are most likely to fail within easy reach of the maintenance crews who need them.

Expand Your Reach

Tell us where you need to store inventory, we'll locate an appropriate and affordable space.

Ramp Up Quickly

Our team can take you from facility concept to fully operational in less than six months.
